New England Regional Institute Presented by Landmark College Institute for Research and Training and Southern New Hampshire University

Putney, VT – July 17, 2009 The New England Regional Institute highlights a collaboration between Landmark College Institute for Research and Training and Southern New Hampshire University to provide full day workshops for educators, administrators, support staff, parents, and students on a variety of topics. Each hands-on session will provide examples of best practices that support students with Autism Spectrum Disorders, students with AD/HD, and supporting reading with the Wilson Foundations™ System.

The Institute will take place on August 20 – 21, 2009 at Southern New Hampshire University, Salem Center, Salem, NH.

For more information on how to register to attend the New England Regional Institute call 802-387-1662 or visit www.landmark.edu/newengland.

Landmark College, located in Putney, VT, offers the most comprehensive academic program in the country for high potential students with learning disabilities and attention deficit disorders.
